GENERAL INFORMATION PERTAINING TO WATER RIGHTS IN CALIFORNIA

There are two principal types of surface water rights in California. They are riparian and appropriative rights.

A riparian right enables an owner of land bordering a natural lake or stream to take and use water on his riparian land later use or to divert water which originates in a different watershed, or return flows from use of groundwater.

With other riparian users. Riparian rights may be used to divert the natural flow of a stream but may not be used to store water for parcel without reservation of the riparian right to the servel'd parcel. Generally, a riparian user must share the water supply must be in the same water shed as the water source and must never have been served from the sources of supply by an intervening parcel with other riparian users. Riparian rights may be used to divert the natural flow of a stream but may not be used to store water for general without reservation of the riparian right to the servel'd parcel. Generally, a riparian user must share the water supply

An appropriative right is required for use of water on nonriparian land and for storage of water. Generally, appropriative rights may be exercised only where there is a surplus not needed by riparian water users. Since 1914 new appropriators have been required to obtain a permit and license from the State.

Statement of Water Diversions and Use must be filed by a riparian and pre-1914 appropriative water users. The filing of a statement from their diversion, and (3) assists the State to determine if additional water is available for future appropriators.

The above discussion is provided for general information. For more specific information concerning water rights, please contact an attorney or write to this office. We have several pamphlets available. They include:

An appropriative right is required for use of water on nonriparian land and for storage of water. Generally, appropriative rights may be exercised only when there is a surplus of water. Since 1914 new appropriators have been required to obtain a permit and license from the State.

Statement of Water Division and Use must be filed by riparian and pre-1914 appropriative water users. The filing of a statement (1) provides a record of water appropriated by riparian and Use must be filed by riparian and pre-1914
